[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—Claims of $9,000 and $1,000 damages respectively by Charles and Horace Gokey, circus acrobats, injured in an Illinois Central railroad wreck, were settled yesterday for $250 and $150, and a bill for $5,000 proffered by their mother, Mrs. Pauline Gokey, was compromised for $500. The plaintiffs live at Oakdale, Wis. The order dismissing the action upon the stipulation named was signed by Judge J. R. According to the complaint, the two brothers while traveling from Cedar Rapids to Central City, Ia., were thrown violently from their seats when the car was derailed in an accident, and sustained injuries that permanently disabled them and prevented them from following their occupation as acrobats with a circus troupe, in which work they were interdependent. Mrs. Gokey's complaint set forth that she had supported the boys until their training was complete and that she had suffered damages in the sum of $5,000 through their loss of wages following the accident and loss of wardrobe and equipment. The Green county fair was held in Monroe last week. The last legislature refused to approve a measure supported by Secretary of State Fear which sought to authorize the employment of inspectors to visit fairs and report on gambling games. State aid is denied to such fair associations as permit gambling on the grounds.

For years the various church young people's societies of Madison had set apart one night for the entertainment of new students, and each on a different evening. The result was that students attended all of them, drank punch to their hearts content and fraternized with town and gown until they found themselves in the difficult situation of choosing the most congenial church home. Now, by concerted plan, all the receptions will be held on the same night, and next Friday is the date. The churches announcing receptions at that time are the First Baptist, First Congregational, English Lutheran, First Methodist, and Christ Presbyterian.

French Authorities Seek Information as to the Explosion of Monday Morning.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Toulon, Sept. 26.—That the destruction of the magnificent French battleship Liberte may be the result of a deliberate plot to destroy the entire navy, is a suspicion rapidly gaining ground among naval officers today.

The many mysterious fires in the naval arsenal here, accidents to ships in dry dock and finally that fire was found in the hold of the battleship La Patrie late last night, which required a desperate battle to extinguish, has caused port officers to demand an investigation.

It is understood the French secret service has been ordered to take charge at once. The fire on the La Patrie was near the powder magazines. Naval officers place the death list at 436, but these figures will be revised when roll calls are completed on the ships and the number of men on leave located.

Five sailors imprisoned in forward turret, part of which is still above water, were rescued this afternoon, none the worse for their experience.

Later three additional seamen slightly hurt were rescued, making eight in all recovered. Work of getting the dead out was then begun. Up to late this afternoon fifty bodies had been taken from the wreck. Although officials say the list of dead will exceed 400, the minister of marine issued a list placing the number of dead and missing at 204, and wounded at 134.

MOVING PICTURES FOR SCHOOL USE

Secretary of State Board of Censorship Advocates That Pictures Be Used for Instruction.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—The schoolhouse as a moving picture theatre will have a practical demonstration on Thursday evening, Oct. 26, when John Collier, the secretary of the national board of censorship of motion pictures, will give an illustrated talk on the educational use of the "canned drama." This lecture will be a feature of the first annual conference on civil and social development to be held here. Mr. Collier will discuss the motion picture as a necessary part of the schoolhouse equipment. He takes the position that it is as absurd for the public schools not to take advantage of the motion picture machine as it would be for them not to use the products of the printing press.

This exhibition of motion pictures will furnish the preliminary to one of the most important sessions of the convention, which will be held Oct. 25-28. The topic of the Thursday evening session will be "Wholesome Recreation in Place of Disipation." Archbishop Ireland was invited to preside at this session but declined on account of his engagement to attend the jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons in Baltimore. Rev. P. B. Knox, pastor of St. Patrick's church of Madison, will preside.

The problem will be stated by Dean Sumner, chairman of the Chicago vice commission, in an address on "The Need of a Substitute for the Evil Resorts," which that commission found were supplanting the life of Chicago. Herbert Bigelow, to whom Ohio's "awakening" is largely due, will give the answer. Dr. Bigelow is the founder of the City club of Cincinnati and is the chief enemy of the corrupt machine in that city.

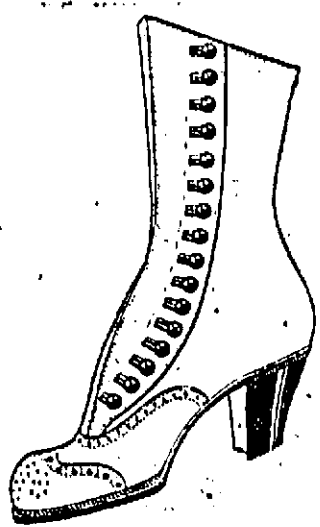

This session of the conference will have particular interest in view of the fact that the social service commission of the Episcopal church in Wisconsin has strongly recommended the wider use of schoolhouses as a means of moral improvement, and the recent interdenominational gathering at the summer school of religion in Madison took a similar stand with regard to this movement.

It was reported that there were three or four of these wandering gentlemen who had camped in that vicinity during the night and had taken this means of procuring a nourishing breakfast before the residents of this part of the city were active.

CHIROPRACTIC

FIRST OPENING
A SIMPLE TRUTH SIMPLY APPLIED BRINGS ABOUT MARVELOUS RESULTS. CHIROPRACTIC REMOVES THE CAUSE OF YOUR DISEASE AND LETS NATURE MAKE YOU WELL!
Pinched nerves are the real cause of disease, wherever your trouble may be. We know that nerves supply life and motion to every organ and muscle of the body. The nerves come down through the spinal column and pass inside the holes between the bones of the back like the one in the picture marked "First Opening." At these points nerve force is often impeded.
For any everyday fall or strain, if severe enough, will displace one of the bone pieces or vertebrae. Then the bony opening almost closes up like the one marked "second opening" and the great trunk nerve that goes through it is squeezed to a third or quarter its normal size. Do you wonder the part of you supplied by that nerve gets out of order?
You don't notice the fall, perhaps, but the local effects may make life a burden to you. You call them "displacements" but the cause is the same for all, though at different places along the spine.
Your remedy is simple and certain—remove the deadly pressure—You remove the cause for your sickness or disability and relieved, nature does the rest. Simple, isn't it?
Send for our free booklet, "The Cause of Disease and Its Removal."

A CONSERVATIVE ANALYSIS.

As has been written just now about the action of Canada in turning down reciprocity, and speculation is rife concerning how results will effect President Taft and the administration party. The Wall Street Journal, a conservative paper and a staunch supporter of the president, thus sizes up the situation:

"While it is proverbially useless to cry over spilt milk, there is no use in disguising that the rejection of reciprocity by Canada, in a manner so decidedly as that indicated by Thursday's election returns, is a bitter disappointment. The measure had been received with approval by far-sighted and thoughtful persons, and the opposition for the most part was frankly interested or factional. The question is probably postponed for another decade, but some results are worth comment.

"In what was perhaps the most unscrupulous speech of the past year the present speaker of the house of representatives willfully raised the annexation specter, for the sole purpose of embarrassing the president. His remarks were manifestly insincere. He himself was an advocate of reciprocity with Canada, but he was willing to risk the great end to which his own party was committed in order to score the cheapest triumph in the history of opportunist politics. To call his effort needless would be of enormous fatality; it was an act of criminal recklessness which must dispose of Mr. Clark as a presidential possibility once and for all.

"It is fairly certain that the result in Canada will react, however unfavorably, upon the president. He did his best; but his enemies will be quick to say that his judgment was at fault, that he overrated the popular demand for reciprocity, and that in consequence he wasted the summer in an extra session, involving the gravest disturbances to industry, commerce and credit. Doubtless, the charge will be unjust; but it is certain to be made, and its effect upon next year's presidential possibilities cannot be lost sight of for an instant.

"Perhaps a consequence as great as any, in its future influence, is the terrible deterioration in Canadian politics. We have seen wealthy and selfish interests here use unscrupulous appeals to popular passion in order to secure ends which would not bear the light of day. Canada voted from the pocket of the patriotic lumbermen into that of the interested American paper manufacturer. Never was a campaign so lavishly financed, so callously abused; while the only fighting issues, the Jingo possibilities of annexation, are too contemptible for serious argument.

"In this country the effect upon tariff revision will probably be direct and immediate. Failing in an effort to secure this measure of liberty and enlightenment in our most difficult fiscal task, the democratic party will be more determined to attack the tariff citadel from other and weaker sides. Unless the tariff commission displays overwhelming capacity to handle rapidly the difficult investigations committed to its charge, it will be swept away. President Taft, who is committed so completely to its success, may be inextricably involved in its ruin."

"The dominion government does not seem to be free from corrupt practices in politics, and money doubtless influenced many votes against the measure. The charges made against Speaker Champ Clark may seem a little sensational, but they are just and his course will react against him.

"As the campaign progresses it is apparent that the tariff will be the issue, and should the democrats win, an era of free trade will have a depressing influence on the business of the country.

GOOD CITY GOVERNMENT.

The mayor of Kansas City has adopted a novel but sensible method to aid him in administering city affairs intelligently. There is no reason why the same plan could not be adopted by the mayor of every city, and it would help to solve many perplexing problems. An editorial in Munsey's Magazine thus describes the new method:

"If you should call on Mayor Brown of Kansas City, on any Monday afternoon, you would see him holding what he calls his 'mayor's cabinet'—a heart-to-heart session with a representative group of merchants, doctors, lawyers, engineers, and journalists about the affairs of the community.

"Here is a precedent which helps to divorce politics from the business of running a city. It happens because a clear-headed and practical man is in the mayor's chair. When Mr. Brown assumed his office he said: 'I don't think that any man is able to run a city as it should be run if he must depend solely upon the advice, counsel, and assistance of party leaders and politically elected officials. I know that I am not wise enough to do this. I need help.'

"So he asked a group of private citizens to meet with him and the heads of the various city departments once a week, and to talk over the city's business frankly and informally.

"The hard sense of the local merchants is projected into the question of appropriations. The seasoned experience of leading doctors is used to protect the health of the community. The best minds at the city's bar help to safeguard the taxpayer, and so on. In short, a large and varied talent is crystallized for the general good. The cabinet has nothing to do with legislation; its function is to inject practical methods into the city administration.

"This Kansas City experiment marks a radical departure from the system which has created more inefficiency and graft in our civic affairs than anything else. Kansas City is showing the way. She is making public business really public."

Next to the commission plan of government, which is more concrete, Mayor Brown has struck the keynote of reform in municipal government. The business of a city should be administered the same as any other business, and this can only be done when the men elected to serve the people possess the knowledge to act intelligently on all questions.

A heart-to-heart talk with the city's executive by men representing various interests, can only result in good and the mayor should be paid a salary sufficient to warrant him in devoting necessary time. The experiment is worth trying in Janesville.

BE CHEERFUL.

The world is bright and sunny—
If you haven't any money.
What's the difference?
Let me ask you anyhow;
Let the other fellow hurry.
Let the other fellow worry.
You won't know a thing about it
In a hundred years from now.
—Detroit Free Press.

That's the logic which makes for happiness the most of us are ready to live about the time we are ready to die, and a retrospective view discloses the fact, all too often, that the years have been spent in worry which should have been devoted to optimistic living.

AN ENTHUSIAST.

Claude Graham-White, the noted English aviator, asserts that within twenty years airships with a capacity for 4,000 passengers will be crossing the Atlantic. Mr. Graham-White spent $200,000 in experimenting before his machine was perfected. He is now the proprietor of the aviation school at Hendon, near London, and has eighteen machines in daily use, some of them in this country and recently made a flight in Boston. Earling made on both sides of the Atlantic and taking the minimum risks in flying. Graham-White hopes to forward very materially the art to which he is devoted. He commands the largest fleet of any aviator in England and recently, for two days' flying at Southampton, near Liverpool, he received $10,000.

The grade crossing accident which occurred near Neenah, early Sunday morning, was one of the most fatal in recent history. Thirteen lives were sacrificed and half a dozen people seriously injured. The question of responsibility will doubtless be determined in the courts. This particular crossing seems to be a death trap, and some method should be adopted by the company to safeguard the public. There are many grade crossings throughout the country equally dangerous.

The Harvard university has established a course known as "vocational guidance," to aid the teachers in determining to what calling, as a life work, the boy is best adapted. This is a long stride in the right direction, and the same policy should be adopted by every school in the land. The failure of life are largely due to misfits, for which the home and the school, and not the boy, are responsible.

President Taft's trip through Kansas was a continuous ovation with nothing to indicate that the state has any disposition to withhold support in the coming election. The insurgents of the Sunflower state are republicans before they are insurgents.

The destruction of the French battleship, and the attendant loss of life, adds another tragedy to naval disasters. The cause of the accident may be as difficult to locate as was the cause of disaster to the "Mafco."

A GOOD FRIEND OF MINE.

I like to go round with a feller I know.
We ain't no blamed handsome men go.
He's not very bright and some times I most think
That he is just slightly on the blink.

He doesn't talk science or music or art,
Or try his discernment on me to impart.

He doesn't talk shop or the state of my health,
Or bore me to death with visions of wealth.

'Tis a joy to go tramping with him any day,
Because of the things that I'm sure he won't say.

He hasn't a fad that he tries hard to spread,
He hasn't a single new thought in his head.

But it's mighty consol'n' to have him around,
I know him clear through, from his butt to his ground.

With me he has always been right on the square,
And I'd trust him with all of my coin anywhere.

He has told me the truth when a good downright lie
Would have been a much pleasanter thing, holla to die!

For to tell you the fact, he's a good friend of mine,
About the best friend that I've got, I opine.

'Tis hard to describe him, so I'll just relate
That he's only a common, plain sort of state.

He ain't worth a glance from a window to see,
My friend whom I speak of is no one but ME.

FROM THE HICKORYVILLE CLARION.

The oyster social at the Hardshell church yesterday, the other evening for the benefit of the heathen in Mississippi was a great success, but it seemed as though the heathen here at home got most of the benefit of it. Had Lucas got the prize for discovering the oyster, had Hank Renfro claimed it was a fraud, and Hank took an oyster with him in his pocket and dropped it into his bowl when nobody wasn't looking. The committee examined it and couldn't decide whether it was the regular church oyster or a substitute, so Hank was allowed to keep the prize, which was a shiny postal card with a picture of Santa Claus onto it. After the supper they played "Postoffice" and "Spoken-out." When they play "Postoffice," a girl goes in the next room, which is dark, and the feller that runs the game hollows for somebody, givin' the name, of course. A love letter in that postoffice is a kiss. Well, Hank Renfro was running the postoffice, and he hollowed out, "Love letter for Ezra Jones." Ezra thought that Miss Amy Stubbs, our popular milliner, was in the postoffice, so he rushes in and grabbed Amy and gave her a kiss, but it turned out that it wasn't Miss Amy at all, but Uncle Lefe Tubbs, who was in there tryin' to find his false teeth he lost earlier in the evening. It was dark in there, but Ezra realized his mistake as soon as he felt Uncle Lefe's whiskers, and Uncle Lefe hauled off and hit Ezra on the nose, and then they rattled all around the room and broke up most of the furniture. Uncle Lefe is quite a scrapper for an old feller, and said doggone his hide if any young caint was going to kiss him, and when he was caught by Ezra had lost most of his clothes and looked like Robinson Crusoe in distress. The heathen got $1.95 and Ezra went home in a barrel.

Mr. Ezra Hicks, proprietor of the Don Ton tenorial parlors, announces that he has secured a new razor in place of the one his wife used to open a can of tomatoes and is now ready to resume business at the old stand.

NO MEET ON DE STOVE.

The following anecdote is being told of a Michigan hardware and stove dealer who hadn't been in the business very long. He bought a stove from a wholesale house, and stove no legs for it, wrote the following note:

"Dear Sir, I received de stove which I buy nrite but for why don't you send me no feet, what is the use of de stove when he don't have no feet; I am loose to customer sure thing by no having de foot and as dat's no very pleasure to me, what is de matter mit you. Is not my trade money so good like nother man's you loose to me my trade and I am very angry for that and I now tells you dat you are a darn fool and no good. I send you back at once your stove tomorrow for sure bakawa you are much darn foolishness people. Yours respectfully, P. S. Since I wrote you rite letter I find de feet in de oven, excuse me."

THE PRETTIEST ONE.

The prettiest woman that I ever seen, I'll tell you the truth, just between you and me.

She isn't no dazzer, and some fellers might.

Not stop to look twice, but she's my choice, all right.

She's not so blarney strong for the thing they call style.

She don't wear her hair in a half-bushel pile.

The beauty shops never make much of'n her.

She don't have her gowns made in Paris. No, sir!

She don't strut around like a peacock and pose.

She don't keep a-dabblin' white stuff on her nose.

I have heard of the beauties of Spain and of France.

But with me they would not stand a ghost of a chance.

I have gazed upon paintings of world's famous queens.

And I've seen a good many made-up actresses.

But the woman who used to bounce me on her knee,

She's the prettiest woman that I ever see.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

JOHN BIGGS' CRUCIFIXION.

One day Stander pulled on her boots and went out and killed a man.

The man who was murdered was the Rev. John Biggs of Harvey, Ill.

Six years ago the Rev. Mr. Biggs went to the village direct from the seminary, zealous to serve his generation.

Being a brilliant preacher, his rise to popularity was rapid. In a year or so he had added 400 persons to his congregation.

He constantly ministered to the needy, the ailing and the despairing.

He accepted a small salary that the church funds might go to the poor.

He visited the police station and wherever he could find the fallen.

But the forked tongue of the church sinner mangled his good will.

He preached the influence of the sacrificial preacher, discouraged and broke hearted, he resigned his ministry.

He left Harvey.

Removing to Iowa, he took another church. The latter story, now known to be false, followed him. Again he moved. Stander, attracted.

In desperation Mr. Biggs left the ministry broken in spirit. He went to work as a common laborer.

Disgraced, half insane from his troubles, he resorted to liquor. Being a man of the sensibilities and delicate temperament, the drink was his quick ending.

Just what the poor creature had in mind he never knew, but somehow he wandered back to Harvey, the scene of his success. The shadow of his cross was on his soul.

And then—

In the police station where he applied for a night's lodging he registered as "John Biggs, laborer," and unknown.

In the police station where he had often exhorted the fallen he hanged himself to the door of his cell.

When the suicide's identity was revealed the community reaped its heart wrenching harvest of remorse.

It seemed to the people whom he had served that John Biggs, despoiled and rejected of men, might have chosen this ignominious death to say to them:

"Ye slow men!"

John Biggs had saved others; himself he could not save from the poisoned tongue of slander.

When to Relax.
Dr. Eugene Hancock of New York says a woman should "positively relax during the noon hour." With the children demanding lunch, the telephone ringing, the grocery boy at the back door and an Armenian lace peddler at the front, not to mention the neighbor running in to borrow the lawn mower, this is very easy, of course.

COMMON SENSE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism has for ages been a puzzle to the doctors. Some claim it to be an infection, a germ disease. Others claim that the cause is uric acid, a kidney disease. It is said that uric acid is carried by the blood into the small arteries of the joints and skin where it crystallizes and that is the small, sharp crystals that cause intense pain with every motion of the body by cutting into the flesh and nerves. Whatover the cause, the best relief known is an Alkaline Effleur of the Salicylates. The chemical nature of the Salicylates is to form soluble compounds with the urates. In this way these crystals are dissolved, taken up by the blood and taken out of the body by the kidneys.

This rheumatic Effleur is taken in teaspoonful doses in hot water before meals. The cure is often in a day or two, yet the remedy should be taken for some time to thoroughly neutralize the blood and prevent a recurrence of the trouble. The elimination of the uric acid and the bowels, should be kept active. Rheumatic Effleur is compounded by Mr. Penning, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, who would be pleased to give you any other information you wish. Sold at 60c. ## DECISION DELAYED AS TO RULINGS OF TAX COMMISSION

Question Whether Janesville Will Have Re-assessment or Not to Be Settled Upon by Commissioners.

Owing to the absence from Madison of Commissioner Adams of the state tax commission, the decision which means much to Janesville business and financial circles, whether a re-assessment will be ordered or not, will not be settled until tomorrow. Harry L. Maxfield, whose complaint brought about the possibility of such a step, and Supervisor of Assessments P. F. Starr are in Madison and will probably remain until the decision is handed down.

No inkling of what might be the possible outcome of this last sensational play of Mr. Maxfield, after the Water company flunked, could be discovered by the representative of the Gazette in Madison, but it is expected it will be ready to be announced by noon tomorrow.

Mr. Starr is at present comparing his list of sales for the past year with those which are filed with the commission, and will have that to work on for several days. Commissioner Adams is expected to return from Chicago tonight and the commission will hold their final meeting on the Janesville matter early Wednesday morning.

The auto was badly damaged, but no one sustained serious injury.

The New Coat and Suit Models For Autumn Wear

The display of Autumn styles is now complete—model after model for every occasion. We have been busy for months seeking and gathering this extraordinary collection of distinctive styles. No store in Southern Wisconsin can equal the selection of Women's Fall Fashions that is shown at The Big Store. Every new material is included. We buy from the leading manufacturers of New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago.

Buying from these different centers gives us a decided advantage over those who confine their purchases to New York and Chicago.

The Reason Why The Big Store Leads Them All

We strive every season, each day, to give you something different, something better, for the money. Our connections with large manufacturing centers of ready-to-wear garments enable us to be in constant touch with the new creations as fast as they appear in the market. In addition we belong to the Merchandise Reporting Agency of New York. We receive reports twice each week of the new things in all lines as fast as they appear in New York. This Reporting Agency makes a specialty of wearing apparel and give pen and ink illustrations and minute descriptions of Suits, Cloaks, Furs, etc., as they appear. This is a valuable service, and keeps our store up to the minute.

A great many merchants in going to New York feel that they have devoted considerable time to it when they put in from a half day to a day visiting the retail stores before buying at wholesale. The Merchandise Reporting Agency that we are connected with has expert Merchandise men and expert shoppers with years of experience, who do nothing but visit the large retail stores of New York City daily, throughout the year, and we get the best information that they can gather twice each week, which amounts to even more than a personal visit even if we made them often, as those men have an inside "pull" and gather information that the outside merchant can never get. So if you want to be informed as to the CORRECT STYLES visit THE BIG STORE.

A Showing of Exclusive Fall Suits

A diversity of styles, fabrics and colorings that make early selections desirable. Many are copies of imported models, controlled by us in this section.

The favored fabrics include Broadcloth, Cheviot, Flake Materials, Basket Weaves, Diagonals, Men's Wear Serges, Novelty Fabrics and Mannish Suitings.

The New Colorings include black, navy blue, golden brown, wine, greys, as well as a variety of mixtures. The coats are 28 to 32 inches long. The skirts are in straight line effects with high waists so popular this season.

Of the jaunty wool dresses and lovely silk costumes for dress up we cannot say too much. The fact is, space does not allow of adequate description. Women fall in love with them and often declare that garments of equal style would be priced very much higher in larger cities.

FOR THE YOUNGER GIRLS we have practical Peter Thompson and Sailor Suits, excellent for school wear, as the wool serges of which they are made are very serviceable. Children like them.

Fall Fashions in Coats

Smart Coats in plaid back and double faced fabrics and fancy mixtures also Broadcloth and Kersey, Coats in black and colors. THE NEW POLO COATS—They are made of fine new imported, double faced cloth in white and the new light and dark two-tone combination. Beautiful novelties that are most attractive, having collars and cuffs of contrasting shade. See the late reversible blanket Cloth Coats that fasten in a variety of ways. Coats to fit every woman. Chic looking Coats for the young lady and small woman, smart looking coats for stout figures, a complete assortment to choose from.

Fashionable Furs

We lead in high-class furs, and the discriminating woman who demands art in fur garments and appreciates distinctive tone, character, style and artistic workmanship will find satisfaction here.

Our display this season is even more complete than heretofore and shows a large variety of high grade furs of every description in the very latest styles. Every garment characterized by the correct touch that gives them individuality and exclusiveness.

When buying furs never lose sight of dependability. Our fur business is built on this foundation. It has and always will be, our principle to offer our patrons the highest grade of furs obtainable at the lowest prices consistent with quality. Correct style is one of the most essential features of our garments. The workmanship of every garment is the acme of perfection and this gives the garment the greatest degree of comfort, smartness and individuality.

Explanation.
"What was the thermometer in front of your house yesterday?"
"One hundred and twenty in the shade."
"Great Scott!"
"Only there's no shade."

The Way to Do.
"When that man was killed, did you break it gently to his widow?"
"Indeed we did. We told her her husband was worth five thousand dollars more than he had been before on his insurance policy."

Way of Weak Humanity.
I see the right and I approve it, too; condemn the wrong and yet the wrong pursue.—Samuel Gai

A Suspicious Sign.
She—I'm afraid the plumber I sent for today was affected by the heat. He—What makes you think that?
She—He had every tool he needed with him when he came.

HIS BILL OF FARE.
At breakfast he ate a poster red,
At lunch a light overcoat;
At dinner on the cans he fed,
For the dinner was a goat.

Find a dog.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Sept. 26, 1871.
Carl Schurz has recently delivered a speech at Nashville, which procured for him the presentation of a glowing letter of admiration signed by hundreds of soldiers of the late rebel army of all grades from the private to the Major-General. Schurz has stepped outside the limits of the Republican camp and is wooing plaudits from the other side. He had better study one of Douglas's speeches of the party leaving him. He will need it.

The figures state that Duke Anhalt will soon abdicate in favor of the Emperor William.

There is nothing personal in the following: "When a project for the benefit of all is on foot, every man's shoulder should be put to the wheel to lift it from the slough of inactivity. When men sit down and oppose every honest undertaking, merely for private or personal prejudice, the sooner they leave the country, the better off the country is.

A load of children riding west along Milwaukee street last evening in a large covered wagon were considerably frightened as they came under the gay ropes at Watson's new hook. The top came in contact with the ropes which stripped it off in a twinkling, no other damage was done.

Ten marriages were recorded at the register's office last week. Cold weather is approaching.

The State Fair opened yesterday at Milwaukee.

Rubber Made From Beans.
It has taken the Germans to use beans for making rubber. The process has just been patented. It consists in extracting a thick oil from the soy bean, treating this with nitric acid, and then heating the material to a given temperature, whereupon it becomes viscid and tough like crude rubber. It can then be vulcanized by the addition of sulphur the same as vegetable rubber, and used for the same purposes.

Process Must Be Slow.
Apples and potatoes when frozen can be restored in good condition if they are thawed slowly. But when thawed rapidly they become flabby and soon decay. The carpers and other covering we place over plants in winter do not prevent their freezing and thawing, but they do prevent their freezing and thawing too quickly hence the benefit.

Life's Responsibilities.
The man called to a great work must not waste his life in trivial things. He must not act like the keeper of the lighthouse who gave to the people in the cabins about him the oil which was intended for the mighty lanterns of the sea.—Master Hlack.

Have Queer Belief.
An amusing superstition of old Man-mouthshire, England, is that a snake has four legs, all of which will duly come out if after thoroughly killing him you hold his body over a hot flame.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.
Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surface. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and is sold by druggists. Price, 75c per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

J. E. KENNEDY
Real Estate, Loans and Fire Insurance, Western Farm Lands a specialty.
SUTHERLAND BLOCK, JANSVILLE, WIS.

Temperament.
"Every time that man approaches me I seem to have a chill."
"You are very foolish. Better warm up to him. His father is president of one of our leading ice companies."

Cement Building Blocks

A complete stock of cement building blocks and porch piers on hand. There is no better material for house foundations than cement blocks. They're attractive, durable and not costly. Let me figure with you.

FARM AND RAILROAD CLOSELY CONNECTED IN EVERY FEATURE

Editor Herbert Quick of Farm and Fireside Explains Relationship in Address at Conservation Congress.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 25.—In an address before the National Conservation Congress here today, Herbert Quick, editor of Farm and Fireside, Madison, Wis., charged the railroads of the country with the duty of adding the development of the farms before giving consideration to dividends. His subject was "The Farmer and the Railroads."

To show the interdependence of the farmer and the railroads he said: "One cannot exist without the other. When the farmer succeeds in growing a good crop from the earth, stocks go up in Wall street. A hot wind in Montana affects Great Northern and Northern Pacific on 'Chinook'; and when the railway fails to furnish cars for the carrying of the crop, that failure affects the notes of the farmer at the bank. For better, for worse, the farmer and the railroad are wedded."

Mr. Quick asserted that the railroads may properly adopt the policy of hauling, or may properly be forced to haul certain public necessities at or for less than cost, so long as on the whole job of transportation they are allowed to earn legitimate profits. "I do not believe," he said, "that in the long run the profits on the fertilizer traffic should be made directly out of their haulage. I believe that the time will come when no transportation fully will rank as greater in the eyes of our railway managers than that of allowing rolling stock to remain idle while there is a chance to get loads of gravel, lime, gravel, phosphate rock, or manure at almost any rate. I am not unaware of the various private interests that would demand and secure monopoly prices if the railroads should transport these things at low rates or even if that were possible; but this is not the time for the discussion of these things. They must be dealt with by the statesmanship of the future. Institutions must be gradually molded to this end that the agriculture of the nation may be enabled to flourish; for on its agriculture and the status of its agricultural population in the last analysis rests the welfare of the nation and its railroads."

Mr. Quick discussed the conservation of the elements that make the fertility of the soil, which includes the nitrogen, potash and phosphorus, the supply of which in a large part is a transportation question. "Agriculture occurs along the line of every railway," he said, "and it is almost common and cheap to gravel. It can be ground cheaply, and cheaply shipped. It should be furnished to the farmer at gravel prices. Gravel lime is sold at almost prohibitive prices and thousands of farmers who know their needs are deterred from satisfying them because of poverty. This is a problem which enlightened statesmanship should solve in the interests of the nation, and one to the solution of which a railroad system operated in the interests of the national welfare would surely address itself."

"The real remedy for the drain of phosphorus lies with the government. We are forbidden by the constitution to stop shipments abroad by means of export duty, but we have the right to stop exports entirely, or to limit them. Our ethical right to refuse to divide the phosphate treasures with the needy agriculture of the world may be open to question; but we might surely demand that the foreign deposits be worked first for the foreign demand. The shipment of our phosphates abroad, with the certainty confronting us that at some time we shall have to re-import the same commodity, involves an economic waste to which the world should not be subjected. And the railroads ought, in their own interests, to adopt every policy legally open to them to keep the phosphate rock for the use of the farms within their own transportation territory."

The fertility of the prairie states, said Mr. Quick, has been sapped by fifty years of grain shipments. "This era," he said, "should be succeeded by the golden age of American milling. The wheat fields of Canada stand ready to send to us fertility to replace that which we have shipped to Europe; and our transportation system should be used to the end that it will be retained here. The Hudson Bay basin would, thus, during its period of self-exploitation, return to the Mississippi Valley what we have sent to the hungry soils of the old world."

Mr. Quick commended the railroads for doing excellent work in educating the farmers. Better agriculture, he said, means more freight, and the blessing applies to both sides.

A Matter of Assurance.
"Some of your speeches," said the cynical friend, "make me think of a mathematical marvel I once knew." "In what way?" "It would dispose of any problem you gave him. Nobody in the crowd was able to say whether he got the right answer, and it really didn't seem to make much difference, anyhow."

Pens of Olden Times.
Confucius used a hair brush for a pen, and his ancestors for centuries before his time. The reed came into use for writing in the marshy countries of the Orient. It was hollow and cut in short lengths with sharpened ends, and was some improvement on the hair pen.

Deeply Affecting.
"And when," said Mrs. Navroosh, "those French peasants came by singing the Marseillaise, it was too deeply touching for words."—Succumb Magazine.

Energy Must Be There.
Energy will do anything that can be done in this world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities will make a two-legged animal a man without it.—Goethe.

NEW BASIC ACT IS DECLARED VOID

Indiana's State Constitution Stands Through Judge Remster's Decision.

IS NOT PROPERLY PRESENTED

Placing of Statements on Election Ballots Enjoined by Court—People Cannot Be Devised of Power to Make Reform in Government.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 25.—The act of the Indiana general assembly of 1911 proposing a new state constitution to be voted on by the people is unconstitutional and void, according to a decision by Judge Charles Remster of the circuit court of Marion county.

He enjoined the state board of election commissioners and the secretary of state from taking action necessary to submit the new constitution to the people's vote.

Attorneys who appeared on behalf of the proposed new constitution made no comment and took no action in the courtroom after Judge Remster had announced a brief summary of his decision. Attorney General Thomas M. Hannon said he thought an appeal would be taken to the Indiana supreme court. It is likely the supreme court would be able to reach its finding in the case before the next general election, which will take place in November, 1912.

Action Was Brought by J. T. Dye.
The suit to test the constitutionality of the act providing for the proposed new constitution and to enjoin the election commissioners and secretary of state from placing a statement of the proposed new constitution on the ballots to be voted on by the people was brought by John T. Dye, an Indianapolis attorney, who is a Democrat. The defendants named in the case were Gov. Thomas H. Marshall, Charles O. Roemer and Mutor M. Bacheider, the election commissioners, and L. G. Eillingham, secretary of state.

Power Not in Assembly.
Judge Remster found that the general assembly does not possess the power to propose a new constitution; that the proposed constitution regarded as a series of proposed amendments to the existing constitution is void because it is not proposed in the mode for making amendments prescribed in the constitutional grant of power to the legislature; that questions concerning the new constitution are judicial questions and not political questions, and that therefore the plaintiff in the case, John T. Dye, as a taxpayer and elector of the state, has the right to invoke the jurisdiction of a court of equity to have such judicial questions determined.

All power to propose and make a new constitution abides in the people, Judge Remster said, and in his opinion the only proper way to frame and propose a new constitution is through a constitutional convention.

"The people can no more divert themselves of this abiding power than a living human being can divest himself of his soul," Judge Remster said.

CALL CHICAGO MAN SMUGGLER

Jeweler and Wife Conceal Gems in Stocking and Petticoat.

New York, Sept. 25.—Rudolph Newman, a jeweler of Chicago, was placed under arrest on the charge of smuggling jewelry. He was released under bond of $2,000 for a hearing.

Newman, his wife and two small children, arrived on the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam and failed to declare a quantity of jewelry consisting of cut and unset stones that were discovered in a rubber stocking that Newman wore and in 25 pockets in a petticoat worn by Mrs. Newman. Mrs. Newman was also charged with smuggling.

Municipal Improvements Society.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 25.—The American Society of Municipal Improvements met here this morning in annual convention with President Fred Giddings of Atchison, Kan., in the chair. Mayor Ellis welcomed the visitors and the rest of the session was devoted to routine business. This afternoon the members had a trolley ride around the city. Beginning this evening the convention will hear and discuss reports and papers on many subjects pertaining to municipal improvements.

Farmer Boy Presidents.

Prof. W. J. Spillman declares that the farmers have furnished this country with 92 per cent. of its presidents, 91 per cent. of its governors, 83 per cent. of its cabinet officers, 79 per cent. of its senators, 64 per cent. of its congressmen and 65 per cent. of its railroad presidents.

Influence of the Positivist.

The presence of one who is a victim to moods is always a calamity to a home. One by one the family seeks to escape from the influence so distressing. Moodiness carried to its last extreme is insanity, and has often neither the insanity of a fool reason to offer nor the excuse of a bad one.—World and His Wife.

TEAM WORK.

"Mama, I wish I was two little puppies, so I could play together." When little Joe said that, he revealed two of the strongest characteristics of boyhood, insatiable fondness for play and companionship. But with him, play was first of all; companionship was to promote play. That was in the early stages of Joe's life. By and by, it will be just the reverse. He likes children, especially boys; shrinks from being alone, likes team work, from the very start. But there are about five stages in the development of his social relationships, during his boyhood; then several, during the remainder of his life, but we are not, at this moment, concerned with tracing him beyond the boundary of boyhood.

First is the indiscriminate and impersonal stage, when he scarcely asks who his companions are, requiring only that they be boys and plenty of them, the more the better. To be sure, he has his preferences, but he has not yet specialized, in a decisive and final way. Their work is play, exclusively, not original, but imitative. During that period, he is apt to be carried by his strong team sentiment over into the realm of the opposite sex and fall furiously in love with some little girl. In fact, he usually does so, each season, or each session of school, and he thinks he can't live without her. This is about the only thing in his boyhood that he cannot turn into play. Whenever he forms a special attachment for a boy, the friendship is like soda pop, comes with a fizz and a bang and they must make the most of it while it lasts. The two use the same slang, the same yoll, the same tones of voice, the same games and, seemingly, the same personality, the same chewing gum; and, when they have a quarrel and make up, the one who was to blame usually treats. They acquire a stock of common possessions and, when their split is over they are apt to scrap for the possession of it. This period seems provisional and temporary.

The next stage comes when he is about ten or twelve years old and he sometimes has the element of permanence in it. What has already been said applies partly to this more personal phase of his team work. He and his chum may become chums for life, and they almost surely will, if they are living in the same community when they enter the next stage.

The third period begins when he is twelve or thirteen. That has been identified as the gang period. Here, again, his attachments are more or less impersonal, though restricted to the gang. The social nature is unfolding in new ways and they do new things, now even to their forgetful fathers, who wonder why boys are such strange creatures, and declare they were never like them.

In this period of team work, they get together by neighborhoods, as a rule, under the direction of some boy who is a natural leader and assumes all the functions of a leader without appointment and without hesitation. There is no rotation in office and, when the chief goes, the gang is already gone; it has reached its natural term and expires by limitation and the boys have no more use for it than for their fathers' old clothes. This team work is in original activities, original to them but not to the rest of mankind, present or past, for that is what the race has been doing all its life. It is fellowship in frolic and fun, adventures by land and water, swimming and skating and hunting and fishing, provided the fish bite fast enough; games of all kinds, with no disinclination for rough ones. They co-operate in collecting, for they all seem to have a collecting mania, not that they care very much for the things they collect, but it is the collecting itself they like.

The fourth stage of his team work is that later chum period, when the gang breaks up and they come out of it, as the animals came out of the ark, two by two. He ties up with some special boy and likes him better than any other boy that ever lived, and they are apt to be friends all the rest of their lives. He will like play, but it is different now. This is the pairing age. He and his chum will have many things to talk about, but the two paramount topics will be their future careers and their "girls," as they always call them.

The fifth stage of his boyhood team work is when he has a great inclination to form an intimate attachment with some fairy creature whom he considers the most angelic being on earth. His sentiments about girls have changed. Something new has waked up in his soul. He can talk with his chum about it, but with no one else. They are just alike on that subject and know how to be confidential. A great day has dawned upon him. Imagination is at new tasks. The rational and deliberative faculties are in the field. Sentiment hangs halcyon over the outlying future. Each stage of his friendship has added something to him and now this one seems to put some finishing touches to his rapidly crystallizing character. His team work has been a success. He is ready for a new life.

CHAMPION PLOUGHMAN.
William Fairweather.

Whetland, Ill.—William Fairweather, the world's champion ploughman, will on Saturday, Sept. 23, defend his title against all comers at the fifty-third annual plowing match to be held on the Hauenrichter farm between Joliet and Aurora. This match is a unique institution in America and was originated here by the Scotch pioneers who settled on the prairie of northern Illinois. Meetings planned after the Whetland match are annual affairs at Rockford and Big Rock, Illinois, and only last year one who started in Connecticut. No ploughman has ever been found who could defeat the Whetland experts who can strike a furrow straight as a string. Originally the match was of vast economic import, but it has long since resolved itself into a home-coming day and one of political significance.

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS

"Then—the shock of being told we were to leave the island... I wanted to think... I went west, along the beach, without noticing—some distance beyond the western point. Then suddenly I found the boat, drawn up close under the bluff, invisible from above... At first I thought it meant Mr. Power had come back, and then I saw how unlikely that was, and tried to explain it. And suddenly it came to me—the real meaning of it. And I hurried to find you..."

"Thank God!" said Coast.
She looked up, wondering at his tone.

"I mean it's one way out," he said soberly; "a mighty slim chance—but yet a chance. I mean, the boat, I've been puzzling all along—it worst came to worst, there was the catboat—but how to get you, aboard her? You couldn't swim that far... She shook her head. 'I could; but even then, would it be possible to work her ashore and take you aboard unobserved? For if they saw us, I'd be under fire and... Blackstock has my pistol,' he ended lamely.

She uttered a low cry of distress; but he could only shake his head in melancholy confirmation of the tidings, detailing the way Blackstock had seized the weapon.

"But now," he wound up with a sorry show of optimism, "it's another story. With the rowboat, we can get off. As things stand, Appleyard..."

Well, we'd better not risk waiting for him. The cat lies out of easy range, and if they try to swim out to stop us, I can beat them off with a boathook or an oar. I think we can make it—at least, it's worth trying. I'll go now and have a look at that boat."

She drew a deep breath, with a nod endorsing this forlorn hope. "Very well," she said tersely. "Go, then. I must hurry back, for fear he may miss me... Yes, I can brave it out; don't worry—I shan't let him suspect... And there's another reason," she continued stubbornly, when he tried to object: "I can get you a revolver if I go back. Yes, my own. I have it in my trunk; I'm sure he doesn't know of it, for I never thought to show it him. It is loaded, too; and I can get it easily... Now I will go."

"Very well," he consented reluctantly. "They won't miss me, that's sure; but you... Try to slip away about dusk. Make some excuse, and—I'll be waiting here, all prepared. And make sure of that revolver, first thing you get back. Take care of yourself above all things... Oh, don't worry about me; he doesn't; with my fangs drawn, I'm no longer a factor in his calculations... Go, then, and—God keep you, Katherine!"

He could imagine the effort that her brave smile at parting cost her... Unsmiling, somberly thoughtful, he watched her away, then hurried down to the beach.

Ten minutes of steady walking brought him to the place where he had bathed that morning—ages ago! A scant hundred feet further on, at the very foot of the bluff that arched a slightly concave face above it, lay a rowboat, bottom up, screened by a huge boulder. Hope palpitant in his bosom, leaping and dying like a candle in the wind, he hastened to it, bent over, hands beneath the thwart, and stood it on its edge. A low cry of disappointment slipped out from his lips. He let the boat fall back to its original position.

There were neither oars nor rowlocks. Despair blackened the sky for him. He swung about mechanically, in a daze of frustrated hope, and started back, plodding heavily as with weighted feet.

Fifty yards away from the boat, a resounding crash behind him brought him to the about face with a start. Whether by accident of nature or human design a portion of the overhanging bluff, just at its verge, had given way, precipitating upon the boat, in a cloud of pebbles, earth and dust, a rock several hundred pounds in weight; one entire side of the dory had been crushed in.

Coast's gaze ranced upward. Alogh

CHAPTER XVIII.

Evening was advancing in utter calm when Coast regained the beach before the deserted village. The wind had died away to mere vagrant breaths, barely strong enough to darken that dully polished, unquiet floor of water, widening in loneliness from those desolate, fog-bound shores.

Panaling beside the beached catboat Coast stared hungrily at the little vessel off shore, gently swinging at its mooring. How to reach her, how make use of her? If needs must...

"What!" he cried, astounded. His gaze was upon the plump, dark, brutish face that loomed at him; he saw its small eyes no longer dull and fixed, but twinkling with an evil, impish glitter. The dim suspicion that more than once he had rejected from his thoughts as extravagant and idle, was suddenly resolved into conviction. "So," he said slowly, "you do see, after all!"

"The discovery," said Blackstock with a ponderous affection of mordant wit, "does credit to your perspicacity. I congratulate you on making it—when I chose to let you."

For a moment occupied with restraining the dog, which seemed half-mad with desire to fly at Blackstock's throat, Coast made no reply. In the light of this revelation the situation was taking on a new and fairly terrifying complexion.

"Of the two of us, I must say you've been the blindest," Blackstock continued in a manner of lifting irony that seemed to amuse him. "I wondered from the first how long you'd take to find me out. Kate, of course, I'm accustomed to; I've had her hypnotized so long that she never dreams of questioning the matter, no matter how barefaced I am. But you—Lord! I thought you'd show more discrimination!" He chuckled grimly, resting an elbow on the side of the careened boat. "You, the knight-errant! He jeered. "Blind as a bat! Good Lord!"

Coast spoke to the dog and succeeded in quieting it temporarily. "You've been taking all along," he asked without visible resentment. "Ever since you showed up in court with those smoked glasses?"

He was talking more than for any better reason, to gain time to readjust his view point.

"Not entirely," he was saying, still with his evil secret smile. "I don't mind telling you, since you're curious, Mr. Coast. I did have the devil's own time with my eyes for a while, and believed I'd lost my sight entirely; I honestly went abroad on their account alone. One of the few honest actions I boast, by the by—if you don't find the interpolation obnoxious."

His laugh rang bitterly in Coast's hearing.

"My friends the German specialists, however," he resumed, "worked wonders; I found my strength of vision returning, but was temporarily amused to continue the make-believe; it was immensely diverting for a time. I received consideration that I wouldn't have, otherwise, and I saw a lot I wasn't expected to see. And then, slowly, as I began to see more and more clearly, I realized the immense advantage it would give me to keep on pretending... You can figure it out yourself."

A slow, dark flush colored Coast's face. "Then," he asked a trace thickly, "why are you giving yourself away now?"

"Because it diverts me extraordinarily, by your leave," Blackstock told him with unconvincing amusement. "Your mortified look, your annoyance—it's rich, my word it is! Besides, the necessity of keeping you in the dark's eliminated. In an hour, my giddy squire of dames, I'll be bidding you a fond farewell. It's been a very pretty farce, while it lasted, and I'm immensely obligated to you for making such an uncommon use of yourself for my benefit, but the curtain's about to ring down. Hence these epilogues."

"What," said Coast slowly, "do you think you mean?"

"Literally what I'm announcing to you," Blackstock yawned affectedly. "The plain truth is," he continued with a mocking pretence of candor, "I'm a bit bored by this place. It's served its purpose well enough—I owe it no particular ill-will; and I've had my fling down here and made my bit of ready money; but now—no thanks to you, by the by—this neck of the woods is growing a trace too hot for me. So I'm going to beat it and leave you cock of the roost."

"You mean you're going to try to escape in that catboat?" Coast nodded toward the craft in question without removing his regard from Blackstock.

"That? Never! No—inquisitive! but I don't mind—I'm going to go away from here in a nice little, tight little motor-boat that's now on the way down from New Bedford, kindness of the same friends who sent me the Corsair—which you interfered with. As for that shell out there, I guess not!"

"Then why...?" Blackstock nodded.

Coast turned to look—retaining with some difficulty his grasp upon the dog-collar. Intermittently while Blackstock talked the blind collier had been making vicious attempts to break away, apparently infuriated by the man's harsh and sardonic accents. And mechanically Coast had been restraining him.

Indistinctly in the falling light he made out the tall, gaunt figure of the Chinaman poised with lifted arms on the gunwale of the boat, preparing to dive, and he received a vague impression that the boat itself was riding lower in the water. At first he failed to make the connection between the two. Then, as he watched, Chang leapt lightly up and out, turned in midair and entered the water as neatly as an arrow, with barely a perceptible splash.

"You see," commented Blackstock with a note of impatience, "I thought I'd remove at least one burden from your already overstrained intelligence."

"His insolence!" fanned to a flame the smoldering resentment in Coast's bosom. "What the devil are you getting at?" he demanded hotly.

"You," returned Blackstock, unmoved. "I had an idea you were making sheep's eyes at my little boat, so I decided to deliver you from temptation, and sent Chang out to scuttle her. A simple matter—watch her setting now!—just a strong twist of the wrist and out comes our bluge plug and in comes the water and—down she goes!"

Coast, choking with despair and rage, in silence saw the prediction verified to its bitterest letter. Then he swung back to his tormentor, quivering with indignation even as the dog he held quivered and strained against restraint.

"Damn you!" he cried despite himself.

Railroad Man Writes Remarkable Letter

In 1903 and 1904, I was a terrible sufferer for about five months with kidney and bladder trouble. I could not sleep nights and was obliged to get up ten or fifteen times to urinate. I passed mucus and blood continually. One doctor said I was going into consumption and gave me up to die. Had two other doctors but received no help from either of them and am sure I would have been in my grave had I not seen your advertisement in the "Daily Eagle-Star." After taking several bottles of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I was entirely cured.

NOVEL IDEAS SHOWN IN STATE EXHIBIT AT BIG LAND SHOW

State of Louisiana to Plan For Many Novelties in Coming Display.

New Orleans, Sept. 26.—In many respects the Louisiana exhibit in the United States Land and Irrigation Exposition, to be held in Chicago, Nov. 18 to Dec. 9, will be unique in the history of such affairs. There will be no private exhibits, no land exploitation, and no boasting of private enterprises or private interests. The state of Louisiana, in its official capacity, will be in full charge and will vouch for the exhibits shown and the information concerning Louisiana that is supplied the visitors. In order to carry out this idea Governor Sanders has named a commission, of which Dr. W. H. Dodson, President of the Louisiana State Agricultural College, is chairman. This commission has full charge of the matter, and with liberal funds at its command has planned what it is believed will prove the most elaborate and striking exhibit from any state.

Robert Gluck, curator of the Louisiana State Museum, a member of the commission and a man of wide experience in such matters, has planned the Louisiana booth, which will occupy the largest space allotted to a state, in the Chicago Coliseum.

The Louisiana state department of League, the Louisiana Development League, the Louisiana State Fair Association, the State University, the State Museum, the boys' corn clubs and farmers' institutes, and civic and commercial organizations in all parts of the state are co-operating with the commission and have combined their efforts to make the exhibit of Louisiana's agricultural resources the greatest in the state's history.

In very recent years, or since the boll weevil opened the eyes of the cotton farmers to the economic side of diversification, the cultivation of cut over pine lands opened up a profitable industry in early vegetable and strawberry culture, and the artificial drainage of the wet alluvial lands impelled great attention to the Delta country, conditions in Louisiana have undergone a complete metamorphosis. Six years ago Louisiana annually imported some twenty millions bushels of corn with which to feed her stock. Her own farmers did not know how to cultivate corn. Farmers' institutes have now taught them how, and last year and this Louisiana not only raised corn enough for her own use, but became an exporter as well. As a result of the boys' corn club movement, a Louisiana boy, in December, 1910, won first prize at the National Corn Show at Columbus, Ohio, in competition with forty-six thousand other boys, with corn he had grown on land which had never before produced more than twenty bushels to the acre. He got one hundred and thirty-eight bushels per acre at a total cost of thirteen cents per bushel.

Many other illustrations of the striking changes that have taken place in Louisiana during the past few years might be cited. For instance, a single town in the pine belt in one season has shipped six hundred and fifty car loads, averaging seven hundred crates per car, of strawberries grown on cut-over pine lands which four years ago were held in little esteem. A cotton farmer who was all but ruined by the boll weevil, turned his cotton lands into potatoes, onions and other food stuffs and doubled his profits over the best year he had ever had in cotton before the boll weevil came. A Michigan man last year got fifty tons of sugar cane per acre from artificially drained land which the native farmers would not have paid fifty cents an acre for ten years ago.

These are merely incidents in the agricultural awakening that has occurred in Louisiana in the last five years, and merely serve to illustrate the broad drift of things.

Many old plantation estates have been cut up into small farms, and are now being cultivated in twenty and forty acre tracts by thrifty farmers and their families. In this way the overlord or plantation system is rapidly disappearing, and enterprising independent farmers are replacing ignorant hired labor.

Louisiana's object in giving an exhibit in her official capacity is to make such an exhibit truly reflect actual conditions freed from all selfish motives. No land will be sold and none offered for sale at Louisiana's booth.

The wisdom of this plan becomes apparent when it is known that the state itself has taken the lead in bringing about the change from lethargic prosperity under a mild climate and prolific soil, to active enterprise in all movements looking to general development and agricultural expansion along the most wholesome lines.

By constitutional amendment, the state has exempted all money invested in the development of land from all forms of state, parish (county) and municipal taxation, and has provided a safe and practical way to induce such development capital to come into the state by authorizing the issuance and sale of well protected district public improvement bonds. The state has also provided for the destruction of mosquitoes, for the building of modern highways at the expense of the state, prohibited public drinking cups, and expediting in public and has done many other things of an advanced character looking to the general good.

In the great scheme of state-wide development provision has been made for the opening up of five times as many miles of navigable canals as Holland, the country of canals, now has.

The Louisiana State Board of Health will send a fully equipped "health" train to Chicago in order to demonstrate the health conditions in the state.

A miniature model of an artificially drained district with steam pumps working and crops actually growing, will be exhibited.

All of the illustrated products now grown on a boll weevil affected farm, with complete records showing cost of production, market value and net profits, as contrasted with the cost of production and profits on cotton culture, will form part of the exhibit.

Yet, so careful will the commission be to avoid exploiting private interests that in no case will either the name of the farm or the name of the farmer or appear on an exhibit. The idea of Louisiana's commission is to correct all false impressions regarding Louisiana's soils, climate, health, industries, agriculture and markets, and with this object in view it has planned an exhibit which, the members believe, will turn some of the tide of United States emigration from Canada to Louisiana, as it will demonstrate that under the mild climate of Louisiana, its rich soil will produce a series of valuable crops on the same land each year as contrasted with a single crop in the north.

PHILIPPINE SAVAGES KILL UNITED STATES ENSIGN

Fanatical Yacans, Shooting Poisoned
Darts in Blowgun, Make Attack
—Three Americans Wounded.

Washington, Sept. 26.—In battle with a band of Yacans, shooting poisoned arrows and supposedly spurred by religious fanaticism, Ensign Charles E. Hozy, commanding the little gunboat Pampanga, was killed on Maslan Island, which forms part of the Philippine archipelago. Others from the gunboat, including one from Illinois, were severely wounded in the action, of which the navy department has received only scanty details.

Through a mistake in translating the cipher cablegram from the islands the name of the slain officer was at first given out as Ensign Haller Holt. Naval officials expressed the belief that the party was on an exploring expedition in the interior of Maslan and suddenly met the Yacans, who are a primitive Malay tribe and fanatical adherents to the Moslem faith. Their principal weapon is the famous "sumptan" or blowgun, with which they project poisoned darts to great distances.

In the engagement J. H. Catherwood, ordinary seaman, was severely wounded and J. H. McGuire, hospital apprentice, and G. F. Hennechen, machinist's mate, were injured.

Hozy was graduated from the naval academy in the class of 1907. His mother lived in Portsmouth, N. H. Catherwood has been in the naval service about three years. His mother is Mrs. E. J. Catherwood, Springfield, Ill. McGuire's mother lives in Gordonville, Mo. Hennechen is from Hartford, Conn.

Tallor Dies in Minneapolis After Having Disease That Time.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 26.—After having suffered from leprosy for twelve years, during which time he walked the streets, worked and had unlimited opportunities to transmit the disease, Ludwig C. Dyrregrov, a tailor, is dead at his home here.

The nature of the malady was discovered after Coroner Benshoer viewed the body, suspected leprosy, and sent the body to the University of Minnesota, where an autopsy was performed.

The health department was immediately notified so steps could be taken to prevent further danger of infection.

WIFE KILLS WEALTHY SPOUSE

Mrs. Gertrude G. Patterson Shoots
Husband After Marital Troubles.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 26.—Charles A. Patterson, formerly a wealthy broker of Chicago, was shot and killed by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude G. Patterson. Charges of infidelity, threatened divorce suits and other marital troubles are given as the cause.

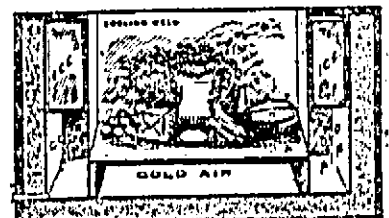

The shooting occurred in Monte Clair, a suburb. Two shots were fired, both striking Patterson in the back. Mrs. Patterson then thrust the revolver under her husband's body and informed bystanders that her husband had shot himself. Later she confessed to the police, when confronted with a statement by an eyewitness of the shooting.

AIR IN THIS ALWAYS FRESH

Ingenious "Well" Refrigerator in Which Food Is Placed Below
Open Ice Trough.

One of the chief drawbacks of many refrigerators is that, although keeping everything cool, they do not allow of the free circulation of air. Fresh air is one of the surest antidotes of staleness, and to satisfy the air should be continually renewed, otherwise one article will become tainted by the flavor of another. The "well" cooler here illustrated is designed to overcome these drawbacks. The well in which the food is placed is sunk within and below an ice-holding trough, the entrance of the well being always fully open to the atmosphere and only covered with a wire gauze to keep out flies and foreign substances. In thus arranging the cooling chamber, the air is free to pass in and out, and, before reaching the food, is cooled by the ice in the surrounding trough. In passing out of the chamber, the air escapes without affecting the food.—Popular Mechanics.

Our First Families.

Science tells us that the Tipulidae, or Daddy Long-legs, were the original inhabitants of North America, and that they occupied Colorado in vast numbers during the tertiary period. It is understood that the descendants of Colonial families have protested against this infringement of their rights.—English exchange.

Cast-On Uniforms in Demand.

Much money is made out of cast-off police uniforms. Quantities are bought by African traders and exported to various parts of the "dark continent," where they are exchanged for palm-oil, ivory, skins and other merchandise. It is by no means an uncommon sight to see a swarthy savage dressed in the uniform of a London policeman, and wearing the regulation helmet of the force.—London Mail.

Shaky Lumber

doesn't require an expert to detect its faults—any child knows that lumber full of slivers and checks is poor building material. Some lumber won't show these defects until it has been exposed to the elements for awhile. The time to guard against such a misfortune is when you first buy—tell us for what purpose you want the lumber and then leave it to us to supply you with stock that won't get shaky. You'll find good stock is the cheapest in the end—we have no other.

Only Married-Men Count.
In Corean marriage is even more important and essential for a man than it is for a woman as, until a man be wed, he is a being of no account. If a father has not selected a wife for his sons ere they reach the age of twenty he is considered worthless and neglectful.

Foundation Important.
Every triumph of life leads back by various paths to earlier preparation.—Blake.
